

National Center for

Family Professional Partnerships

Upcoming Webinars

National Center for Family/ Professional Partnership (NCFPP), in collaboration with the Autistic Self-Advocacy Network, Kids As Self-Advocates, and Youth MOVE, is pleased to offer a 3-part webinar series for youth and young adults only:

- Participating in Advisory Groups, on March 21, 2017, 7:30 – 8:30pm ET. Savannah Logsdon-Breakstone from the Autistic Self Advocacy Network will share tips and strategies to help youth self-advocates serve on boards and other groups.
Register at: <https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/17YAdvisory>
- Telling Your Story for a Public Policy Purpose, on April 11, 2017, 7:30 – 8:30pm ET. Reid Caplan, from the Autistic Self Advocacy Network, will use his extensive experience as an advocate to share opportunities for using personal stories for advocacy purposes including an explanation of a public comment period and how to make sure that your voice is heard.
Register at: <https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/8LVD875>
- Working with Adult Allies, on May 16, 2017, 7:30 – 8:30pm ET. Savannah Logsdon-Breakstone from the Autistic Self Advocacy Network explores how youth self-advocates and adult allies can collaborate effectively.
Register at: <https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/8LYH3BJ>

Family Voices Leaders Engaging with Title V, Monday, March 27, 2017, 2:00 – 3:30ET
Family Voices National Center for Family Professional Partnerships (NCFPP), in partnership with the Association for Maternal and Child Health Programs (AMCHP), will provide strategies and share opportunities for family leaders to engage with their state Title V programs.

MCH and Title V Leaders Engaging Family Leaders, Wednesday, March 29, 2017, 1:30 – 3:00 ET
The Association for Maternal and Child Health Programs (AMCHP), in partnership with Family Voices National Center for Family Professional Partnerships (NCFPP) will provide strategies and share opportunities for MCH and Title V program staff to engage family leaders.

Engaging Diverse Families in Leadership for Systems Change, April 20, 2017, 3:00 – 4:30ET
Family organizations, professionals, and state and local agencies are increasingly seeking to engage diverse families in leadership to improve systems. This webinar will provide tools and strategies to help organizations and agencies assess and improve agency and staff readiness; identify, recruit, prepare, engage and support diverse family leaders in meaningful leadership roles; recognize family leader contributions; and become an organization more focused on and capable of supporting diverse leadership.

Registration information will be available soon. Watch for updates and additional information in the Washington Update e-newsletter and on the NCFPP website at:
<http://fv-ncfpp.org>